

Point-to-Point Private Lines

Extend the reach of your internal communications.

With an extensive U.S. domestic network infrastructure, MetTel connects our clients to one of the most advanced networks in the country, offering a cost-effective family of private line services that support both voice and data applications, extending the reach of your internal communications. Private lines provide point-to-point digital data connectivity (not part of the public switched network) which can link multiple sites to each other or to network nodes with a fully managed high speed service.
